More snow is expected.

Sleds are in good demand.

The trains were all on time last evening.

EVERYBODY traveling nowadays seem to have lots of parcels.

The small boy is in his glory. The hills have sufficient snow on them to make coasting possible.

Quite a rivalry was noted early yesterday morning among the livery men as to who should get out the first sleigh. But as the first sleigh was out before daylight it could not be determined who won.

The stone sawing for the Union Depot has been completed, and yesterday the ponderous saws and frames were being loaded on to the cars preparatory to being shipped back east, where there is another job waiting its arrival.

The Opera House had a more full attendance last evening, to witness the rendering of Ernest Maltavers by the Snow-Houtz Dramatic Company. The piece was well rendered, and the costumes were elaborate in the fullest degree.

The management of the Catholic fair, which has been such a grand success, will this evening give a ball in the Opera House, to which all the patrons of the fair are invited. The fair will continue to-day and to-morrow, and there seems to be no diminution in the interest taken, and the attendance has been good and the receipts large from the start.
